The image shows the handwritten Japanese character 'カ' (ka) in black ink on a white background. The character is composed of two main strokes. Stroke 1 is a horizontal line that starts on the left, curves slightly upwards, and then curves downwards to the right. Stroke 2 is a vertical line that starts at the top, curves to the left, and then curves back to the right, crossing over the horizontal stroke. The numbers '1' and '2' are placed near the starting points of the strokes to indicate the correct order and direction of writing.
