はいる expresses the intransitive meaning of the verb enter (that is, to enter some type of place). It is rarely used in compounds.

いる is most commonly found in compounds, primarily when the other 漢字 is read with 訓読み (ニュウ performs this function when the other 漢字 is read with 音読み).

いれる is simply the transitive companion of はいる.

As can be seen in the fourth example, this 漢字 can behave on rare occasions like 買.
